

WINES OF THE YEAR 2020: SPARKLINGS AND REDS

We asked our experts from around the world, and the Decanter team, to nominate the classic, offbeat and value wines that impressed them most in 2020. Our trio of judges blind-tasted and ranked them, and here we reveal the first half of the results, as Tina Gellie reports there hasn't been much to celebrate in the past 12 months.

But in challenging times, great wines can always lift the spirits – and our fourth Wines of the Year tasting certainly does that.

We asked Decanter World Wine Awards Regional Chairs, key contributors and staff to nominate the wines they have most enjoyed over the past 12 months, under the categories of Classic (a premium, textbook wine style), Offbeat (unusual grape, winemaking method, region or unearthed gem) and Value (a wine that impresses at £25 or under).

They put forward 107 nominations, and here we reveal the 64 sparkling and red wines, of which almost a quarter scored 95 points or more.

Unique tasting

'This is all about experts – who really understand the varieties and wine styles of their regions – choosing wines they love, and that makes it an unique tasting,' explained Beth Willard. 'We've had an incredibly broad range across two days of tasting: some classics, some unusual varieties, and some varieties from regions where you wouldn't expect to find them. And in general, all of these Wines of the Year, at all price points, have broad appeal.'

Andy Howard MW enjoyed the sparkling flight. 'The Champagnes, as you'd expect, were excellent, and the English wine with the extra ageing was an outstanding example.' But it was the Tasmanian sparkling (overleaf) that stole the judges' hearts with its maturity, complexity and 'sheer deliciousness – I'd very happily drink that any day', said Howard.

However, it was the red wines which really piqued their excitement. 'It was fascinating to see what our fellow experts had chosen,' said Ronan Sayburn MS. 'Though it was often quite difficult to judge – like when you taste your first ever Moschomavro (see p40), which clearly someone thinks is great, and probably is, but you're not trying it in context with a bunch of other Moschomavros!'

The classic wines were benchmark examples. Sayburn singled out the Pinot Noirs, including a 'delicious, characterful' Sancerre and 'a fantastic IGP Pinot from the Loire – it will be interesting to know the price of that'.

Willard was impressed by the Cabernets. 'I really enjoyed the different expressions from around the world, but the classic regions shone through: Western Australia's Margaret River and Rutherford in Napa. I was also really excited by the Canadian Merlot blend – an outstanding red with great elegance and intensity.'

For Howard it was all about Syrah, and especially the St-Joseph: 'This stood out for me – I always think it's not as great as Côte-Rôtie or Hermitage, but this example was fantastic.'

But the wine of the tasting was an Amarone. 'It was an outstanding example of the genre,' said Howard. 'Its age, depth, complexity of flavour and alcohol – everything was beautifully balanced.'

The judges were keen to point out to readers that prices (and the categories in which the wines were entered) were not revealed, so their scores were based purely on quality. 'For example,' said Howard, 'there was an IGP Puy de Dôme red and a Vin de France Grenache that I suspect are not particularly expensive, but were just really delicious wines to drink.

'Across the board, whether you are at the exotic end of Amarones, SuperTuscans, Napa Cabernets and Champagnes or down at that IGP level, this tasting showed the diversity of great wines out there.' >

Andy Howard MW 97 Ronan Sayburn MS 96 Beth Willard 96 $\pounds 99.75\text{-}\pounds 102.80 \; \text{Exel, Liberty Wines, Oz Wines, Vinvm}$ It is fitting that such an exceptional cuvée should be named after sparkling wine maestro and Arras head winemaker Ed Carr. The wine's unique character is due to a very extended period on the lees - a total of 12 years, in fact.

Andy Howard MW Great complexity on the nose and palate. Intriguing pea-pod characters, hints of oyster shell, a saline influence combined with bright stone fruits. Great precision on the palate with fine-boned acidity and a long, lingering aftertaste.

This has great development of smoky, umami character, all kept in check by laser-like acidity, along with great purity on the finish. Very fine.

Ronan Sayburn MS Complex and rich nose of toasted brioche and nuts with deep mango and peach fruit. Melted butter on warm toast. Big palate, but structured, with balanced acidity.

Beth Willard Smells a bit like home for me, with attractive eucalyptus notes along with lime and lychee. The palate is rich with ripe fruit, but has well-balanced acidity. Showing just a hint of evolution, but incredibly fresh for its 16 years. Very refreshing finish, with a touch of white pepper and spice.

Allegrini, Fieramonte, Amarone della Valpolicella Classico Riserva, Veneto,

£369 Liberty Wines, NY Wines of Cambridge

Very much a prestige bottling, from one of the most famous producers of amarone, Fieramonte is a single-vineyard wine made from grapes grown at an altitude of 415m above sea level. As is traditional for the style, the fruit is dried and sees a drop in weight of 40%-50%, after which fermentation is carried out in stainless steel before the wine ages for four years in French oak barriques.

AH A lovely amarone, this has all the characteristics you would hope for. Warmth on the palate, intriguing, slightly raisined fruits and restrained acidity. The sugar feels very low. Fine structure, elegant and seems much lower than the stated 16.5% alcohol.

Retains a coolness on the palate which makes the wine extremely drinkable. There is a lot of disappointing amarone out there; this is a bottle to put things to rights!

RS Dense and concentrated nose of espresso, dates, chocolate, dried fruit and raisins, forest floor and black forest gâteau on the palate. Rich, full, with heavy alcohol. Long, complex and delicious.

BW Attractive aged character to this wine. Really intense dried fruit, big and rich with a long finish. Shows off the region and [Corvina] variety very well. Even though obvious, the oak is well integrated, and there is good potential to age further.

Interesting varietal typicity of old-vine Carignan, matured for more than a year in stainless steel vats. Herbal notes, smoked meat and a generally wild, garrigue character. Earthy, tight on the palate with grippy tannins and acidity. Drink 2021-2040 Alc 14% Georgie Hindle

£25.99 Wines of Uruguay

Dark, stalky, tight fruit on the nose with black olive, Provence herbs and a curious saline quality. Smooth acidity, ripe tannins; a very elegant wine with lots of texture and no harsh edges.
